First Dutch Churchmen Hold Annual Dinner

District Attorney Hayward, a Dry, Says All Laws Should Be Enforced But He Doesn't Know Whether Some Can Be—Judge Russell Brilliant Speaker—Wynkoop Guild Does Itself Proud.

Colonel William Hayward, United States District Attorney for the southern district of New York, touched only lightly on prohibition but emphasized obedience to law as one of the outstanding characteristics of George Washington in an address which he delivered at the annual men's dinner in the chapel of the first Reformed Dutch Church on Friday evening, at which time his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor was given the stamp of approval of Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, the toastmaster.

The other principal speaker of the evening was former Chief Justice Isaac Franklin Russell of the court of special sessions of New York city, who for three-quarters of an hour proved himself the wittiest after-dinner speaker Kingston has had in many years, and then concluded with a remarkable tribute to Washington and the forefathers of the Republic. Two hundred and twenty-five men, all for whom table arrangements could be made in the chapel, sat down at seven o'clock to enjoy the second annual men's dinner of the church. One hundred and sixty seats were occupied by the men of the church, and the balance of the seats were taken by men of other churches and other denominations. The dinner itself was a marvel of the home-maker's art and was prepared and served by fifty members of the Hesteretta Wynkoop Guild of the church, who both in preparation and service maintained the best traditions of the old Dutch hospitality by which the Dutchmen of ancient "Sopos and their guests grew fat and lived long."

The menu was as follows:
Oxtail Soup
Saitines
Roast Turkey
Gravy
Mashed Potatoes
Creamed Onions
Cranberry Sauce
Pears
Celery
Coldsaw
Grape Fruit Salad
Apple Pie a la Mode
Coffee

Throughout the dinner community songs were sung under the leadership of W. Whitling Fredenburgh, organist and choirmaster of the church, which alternated with an elaborate jazz program interspersed with vocal selections by Zucca's orchestra. The decorations of the chapel generally and the tables were appropriate to Washington's birthday.

The church, where the men assembled for a half-hour reception preceding the dinner, and the chapel never have contained a more representative body of men than were in attendance at the dinner. "America" was sung as soon as tables were filled and the invocation was then made by the Rev. W. F. Stowe, pastor of the Reformed Church of the Comforter.

Principal B. C. Van Ingen of Kingston high school, president of the Men's Club of the church, called the assembly to order when tables had been cleared, and paid his respects to the men of the club, to the ladies of the church for the wonderful dinner they had served, and the way in which it had been served. Three rousing cheers for the ladies of the church were proposed by the Rev. Lucas Boers, pastor, and the cheers were given with heartiness that caused them to be heard a block away. President Van Ingen introduced Judge Hasbrouck as toastmaster.

Judge Hasbrouck on Public Questions.

Judge Hasbrouck referred to the fact that citizenship of the city of Kingston was a thing to be proud of, and if such citizenship owed a debt to one institution more than another, it was owing to the first Dutch Church. The early settlers had built a community around the church which they had established, and when the state itself was organized, it had been around the same church and community. He was glad to see evidence of such a community still existing around this ancient institution, which always had stood prominently for three things—tolerance, fair play and civic righteousness. Would to God that this spirit, marked by dispassionate calm, would pervade all our national institutions today.

But instead of calm, we read daily in the newspapers of happenings which are received in a far from calm manner. A son of General Wood was being condemned because he had authorized to himself about $500,000 of speculators' money. It would seem that a jury could convict a man on a charge of denouncing the United States senate for demanding that the president of the United States give letters of cachet to a secretary of the navy who was responsible to the president alone for his acts, and likewise was demanding the resignation of the attorney general of the United States. For what? Because somebody had been monkeying with the Teapot Dome, a piece of real estate in Wyoming which because it contained oil and was owned by the government had attracted the eyes of men who would have drained it of it all if somebody had not stopped them. What had happened was

Producers' Milk Price For March

The producers' base price for Class 1 (fluid) milk in March will be $2.23 per 100 pounds at the 201-210 mile freight zone, according to an announcement made by the Dairy-men's League Cooperative Association, Inc. This price has remained unchanged since January 7. Prices of the lower classes of milk will be as follows:

Class 2-A	$2.10
Class 2-B	2.25
Class 2-C	2.25
Class 3	2.00

that somebody had carried $100,000 from New York to Washington in cash and had presented it to Secretary Fall. The news got out, and then this august, composed body of the United States senate, which have revered as the backbone of our country, proceeded to have a fit of hysteria because somebody was charged with bribery, and nobody could tell when they would get back to normal.

But if the senate would only take their eyes from their own scandals and glance over at the White House at the face of the calm, rugged, untrifled, untrifled and disinterested Calvin Coolidge, they would the sooner get back to a normal state. Why would George Washington think and say if only he could return and contemplate the senate at present? When men like Secretary Denby can be driven from public life, the senate is beside itself. Back of Denby was his family, back of him was an illustrious career of service in public life, and it was nothing less than a crime to send him out without a fair trial and the judgment of his peers.

Colonel Hayward's Talk.
In introducing Colonel William Hayward, Judge Hasbrouck referred to his career as a public service commissioner, to his service in the World War and his service in the United States district attorney's office, where he had seen fit to recognize the ability of two of Ulster county's sons in their appointment as assistant.

Colonel Hayward said Judge Hasbrouck's remarks reminded him of an experience with one of the members of the regiment of brunettes whom he had raised in New York city, drilled on the streets with broom sticks before they were provided with guns, and had taken over to the western front in France. One of them, after examining the trenches as soon as he was sent into them and expressing the opinion they were "not so bad," called over to the German trenches to show what they could do. An instant later, a big German shell from far behind the lines sunk its nose in the soft mud through which the trenches had been dug and then exploded, covering the negro with a ton of mud but not injuring him. As he dug the mud out of his ears, eyes and mouth, he was heard to exclaim: "Well, there's one thing you get over here, and that is service."

The present month of February said Colonel Hayward, was marked by the birthday anniversary of two great Americans, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Washington was a born aristocrat. He was the richest man in the United States when elected president. Lincoln on the contrary was a child of poverty and sorrow, who looked through the roof of his home at the stars. Yet, starting from diametrically opposite beginnings, both these men came to the same point of service to the people, not only in deed but also in point of example. Their great service was not so much what they did in their lifetime as in the principles which they established and handed down to all future generations. Washington enjoyed the greatest contentment during his term of office and then retired. Lincoln saw turmoil throughout most of his term, witnessing victory at the end but not being allowed to live to enjoy its fruits.

These two men had in common two great things which our country needs today, and it will not be amiss to borrow from their lives the examples they set. Both were men of God. That fact is reflected and shines forth in every letter and message of both men while they were president. We see Washington on his knees at Valley Forge. We see Lincoln on his knees at the White House just before the battle of Gettysburg with the same supreme confidence in God which Washington had displayed before him.

Washington was a member of a church long established in this country, he attended church regularly each Sunday morning and in the evening he and Mrs. Washington held religious services at home. On Sunday visitors were not welcome at Mount Vernon. Lincoln's religion was not less profound but it was less polished. Today we could profit by their example by being in closer communion with God and with the church. It is an encouraging sign when men get together in church groups such as this meeting.

The other outstanding feature of the lives of both Washington and Lincoln was that both believed in law, both were orderly. Perhaps no better illustration could be given than the picture of Washington working out the Constitution of the United States with the help of Hamilton, working out a plan of government for a new nation. They had no easy task to work out a plan of government of by and for the people. There was a struggle of giants in that Constitutional Convention, when Hamilton was at grips with the majority against him under the leadership of no less able a general and statesman than George

SUPERVISORS' CLERK MADE BIG MISTAKE

A special session of the Delaware county supervisors was held at the court house, village of Delhi, Tuesday evening, all members being present. The object of this getting together was to correct or to arrange for a correction of the tax rolls of the county, which have now been largely collected. The clerk of the board by an oversight duplicated the state tax in his budget, a sum of $95,156.05, which amount will have to be refunded to the taxpayers of the county.

The amount of the return to the taxpayers will be about 10 per cent of the sum of the taxes paid. That is, a person who paid a tax of $100 will receive a return of $10.

Goldfarb Uptown School Rabbi

The Uptown Hebrew School have named as their rabbi S. Goldfarb, from Brooklyn, N. Y., who after having been engaged for several weeks as trial, has now been retained for the whole year.

Rabbi S. Goldfarb comes from Brooklyn, well recommended as to his activity in this field of social welfare, having been for years connected with great Hebrew schools in various communities and congregations in Paterson, Perth Amboy, New York and Brooklyn. The school is open daily except Saturdays and Sundays from 3:45 to 6:45 p. m.

Sunday school at the uptown Hebrew school under guidance of Rabbi S. Goldfarb will be held every Sunday from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., beginning the last Sunday in March this year.

About the Folks

Minnie Margolis of 19 Ann street left for Pennsylvania today, where she will visit until Tuesday.

Granville Whitaker, superintendent of H. W. Paten's Sons mill working plant on Broadway, is ill at his home on Albany avenue extension.

Mrs. Irving Embree and niece, Miss Elizabeth Lusty, of Catskill, are spending the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Downey on Delaware avenue.

Miss Edith DuBois and her friend Miss Rosemary Woods, both of New York city, are visiting at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles DuBois on Smith avenue.

Edward Kelly, general manager of the Clyde-Ward Steamship Line, has returned from a visit to the south and is spending a few days with his sister at the family home, 127 Greenkill avenue.

A baby boy was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Robinson at the Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium. Mr. Robinson is a son of Dr. J. S. Robinson of 44 Abel street this city and is a practicing attorney at Buffalo.

The Star and Herald of Panama, P. O. of February 14 printed the following: Among the arrivals on yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Tindale of Kingston, New York, who have been spending the winter in Jamaica.

They are friends of Captain and Mrs. Svensson, and Mrs. Lefevre, who is the Svenssons' house guest. Mr. and Mrs. Tindale were met in Colon by Captain Svensson, and Mrs. Lefevre who made the transit of the canal on yesterday from the Manchuria. The many friends Mrs. Lefevre has made during her visit here will regret to learn that she is sailing for her home in New York the 19th.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS.

"Tiger Rose" will be shown for the last time this evening at the Kenney Theater. This picture, starring Lenore Ulric, is the screen version of David Belasco's famous play of the same name.

At tonight's performances at the Opera House the snappy vaudeville bill and the picture, "Bright Lights of Broadway," which has pleased large audiences for the past two days, will be shown for the last time. A brilliant cast plays in the picture, which depicts life as it is lived on New York's great white way.

At the Auditorium today is Jack Hoxie starring in "The Red Warning," a universal attraction. On his own famous horse, Jack Hoxie thunders and tears over hill and plain in this, his smashing outdoor romance.

This is the last day for the vaudeville show at the Orpheum Theater in conjunction with a William Fox production, Tom Mix in "Romance Land."

BOXING BOUTS TO BE HELD HERE IN JUNE

With the incorporation of the Kingston Exhibitions, Inc., with the secretary of state, as stated in Friday's Freeman, plans for holding outdoor boxing bouts on the Kingston Fair Grounds will be pushed rapidly. It is hardly likely that the first bouts will be held much before the early part of June. While the new corporation has not as yet received its boxing license from the state it is expected shortly.

Oil Probers Call Secretary of President

C. Bascom Slemo to be Asked About His Stay at Palm Beach, While Fall and McLean Were There—Another Cabinet Member Traded.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Feb. 23.—C. Bascom Slemo, secretary to President Coolidge, was requested today to appear before the senatorial oil investigating committee at 10 o'clock next Monday morning. Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, notified Slemo he would be the first witness called when the committee resumes its public hearings at that time.

Walsh plans to interrogate Slemo as to the reasons for his trip to Palm Beach in December, when both E. B. McLean and Albert B. Fall were at the resort.

Slemo said he would be there. No subpoena was issued.

McLean himself also had been subpoenaed to appear Monday. It was announced by Senator Lenroot, Republican, of Wisconsin, chairman of the committee. Because of the examination of brokerage books now being made by expert accountants however, it may be that McLean's appearance will be postponed until later in the week.

The latest information before the committee today was that the name of another cabinet officer in addition to Attorney General Daugherty, has been reported on books of brokerage houses which are under scrutiny of the committee's expert accountants. The lists were said to show that the official dealt extensively in oil and steel stocks.

New York, Feb. 23.—Harry F. Sinclair, an outstanding figure in the Teapot Dome investigation, remained in New York today, but could not be seen by newspapermen. Glen B. Winship, public relations counsel for Sinclair, said the oil magnate would probably prepare a general statement for publication next week. Winship said Sinclair had not been advised as to the date he will be recalled before the United States senate oil investigation committee.

Officials Visit Kingston Chapter

Assistant Grand Lecturer and District Deputy Grand Matron of O. E. S. Entertained Here.

Clinton Chapter, No. 445, O. E. S., held one of the most important meetings of the year Friday evening at Masonic Hall, Wall street, when Mrs. Florence H. Cooks, district deputy grand matron of the Ulster-Greene district and Myron H. Styles assistant grand lecturer, made their official visit to the chapter. At six o'clock the officers of the lodge gave a banquet to the visiting Grand Lodge officers at the Advance Restaurant where a course dinner was served.

The meeting of the lodge was opened at 8 o'clock in regular form and after the meeting the worthy Matron received the Grand Lodge officers, Mrs. Alice E. Norwood acting as Grand Conductress. In a very neat speech Mrs. Norwood presented Mrs. Cooke, deputy of the Greene-Ulster district and Miss Riseley presented Assistant Grand Lecturer Styles. In her address to the lodge Mrs. Cooke spoke along the lines of Washington taking as her subject, "Truth" and proving herself a very worthy speaker. Mr. Styles in his address spoke of the good qualities of the order and the progress which the order has made and of the bright future.

Other grand officers and present worthy matrons and patrons of the lodges of the district were present. Visitors were present from Catskill, Cairo, Saugerties, Kingston Chapter of Kingston, Oak Hill, Prattsville, Wingham and also from Brooklyn and New York city.

During the evening worthy Matron Miss Edna Scheepmoes gave a very interesting talk and presented to District Deputy Grand Matron Cooke a gift from the members of Clinton Chapter.

Worthy Patron Cyrus Carle presented a gift to Assistant Grand Lecturer Styles.

The hall filled to capacity was decorated with flags, palms and similar in keeping with the day. During the session music was furnished by Arthur Alton, Miss Gladys Gray and Miss Kieffer.

After the close of the lodge a bounteous repast was served and a social hour enjoyed. The affair was a whole added special laurels to Clinton Chapter for the excellent program and the way in which every detail of the affair was handled.

PREDICT LEGISLATURE WILL END DAYLIGHT SAVING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Feb. 23.—Republican members of both houses of the Legislature believe that the bill offered by Senator Bouton, of Delaware, to end daylight saving time in New York state, will be adopted. At present municipalities have the privilege of adopting local ordinances to provide for daylight saving time.

Palmer III.

Hon. George M. Palmer, for years a leading state Democratic politician and a former member of the state assembly, is critically ill at his home in Cobleskill, Schoharie county. He is well known in this city.

KLAN WARRING ON HOOC AT STAMFORD

The Stamford correspondent of the Oneonta Star in referring to the activities of the Ku Klux Klan at that place writes:

One night recently a cross was burned on the hill near the Stamford cemetery and colored lights were also burned. Several persons have received notice signed by the Klan to leave town as non-desirables or bootleggers. The plan evidently has started to stop the sale of "hooc." Some boys have been found intoxicated and some men have been made seriously ill from drinking the stuff sold as liquor. One man has lost his eyesight and is near death. It is reported that some of the bootleggers have been using young boys to deliver their product. One man who received a notice to go has taken his departure and others are seriously thinking of going.

Six Cases In Police Court

Wallie Madajewski, Bernard Kaminski and Frank Bujak were arrested Friday evening by Casper Michels on a charge of fighting in his place of business at 487 Delaware avenue. They were turned over to Officer Ray Saeloff. This morning Mr. Michels informed Judge Schirick that he did not desire to press the charge and the trio were discharged.

Anthony Hock, who was found asleep Thursday night in a snow bank, was fined $5, but the payment was suspended. He had informed Judge Schirick Friday that he had not $20, but this morning he was unable to remember when or where he had the money lost.

Nathan Jones was picked up drunk on Prince street about 11 o'clock Friday night by Officer Gimsey Burger. Jones was fined $5 by Judge Schirick. Henry Levine arrested by Officer Reardon on a charge of public intoxication Friday afternoon, also contributed $5 to the city treasury.

Spanish Dancer At The Orpheum

Famous characters of history, almost as well known today as they were in their own time, come to life in Pola Negri's new Paramount picture, "The Spanish Dancer," a Herbert Brenson production adapted by June Mathis and Beulah Marie Dix from the book and play, "Don Cesar de Bazar," which came to the Orpheum Theater for a run of three days, starting Monday.

Among these characters are Olivares, powerful politician of his day; Cardinal Richelieu, sworn enemy to Olivares; and Don Carlos, whose portraits were painted a dozen times by the great artist, Velasquez, and now hang in many famous art galleries. Those roles are enacted by Henry Veece, Charles A. Stevenson and Dawn O'Day, respectively.

Two hundred and fifty minor players take part in the big array of camp scenes. A strong cast has been provided. Besides Miss Negri, those who take part include Antonio Moreno, who is featured, supported by Wallace Beery, Kathleen Williams, Gertrude Hagen, and Antonio Negron. Others in the cast are Edward Kipling, Frank O'Day, Robert Brower, Henry Vogel, Rosita Marstini, Bord Irwin and Charles A. Stevenson.

WEST HURLEY.

West Hurley, Feb. 23.—Miss Nevada Dumond of Crosswell, Michigan, spent the week end with Miss Ruth Herrick.

Mrs. George Hammond is spending some time in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. Willard Reynolds of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry.

The many friends of Mrs. Fannie Scoville Sutton were saddened to hear of her death at her home in Kingston on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin Herrick of Woodstock and Miss Ruth Herrick and friend, Charles Hogan, of Ashokan, spent Wednesday night of last week with Alvan Buely of Kingston and listened to his new radio.

Miss Charlotte Van Etten was in Kingston on Saturday.

Levinson Wins Oratory Contest

Arthur Levinson of the Poughkeepsie High School won the elimination contest of the Columbia University Oratory contest at the Poughkeepsie High School Thursday evening by a 2 to 1 decision over Theodore Theilpape of the local high school. Levinson will be sent to Columbia with nine other district winners for the finals. Professor Burgess Johnson, one of the judges, recommended that every effort be made to send both speakers to the finals as both orations were exceptionally good.

The speeches were judged for delivery and for the logical arrangement and quality of argument.

Levinson spoke on "Destroying America's Future," and Theilpape spoke on the subject, "Should the United States Enter The League of Nations."

Although little has been said in the Freeman recently about the big and noiseless Kingston Automobile Show to be held in the armory on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 6, 7 and 8, there is every evidence that the show will be the best ever. Only one problem remains unsolved and that is how to keep automobiles equipped with balloon tires on the floor. A special committee has been appointed to devise an anchoring scheme, or it is feared that unless this is done the hot air generated by the numerous salesmen will enter the tires and send the cars soaring to the ceiling.

Through the efforts of Homer Kuhlmann the Ontario and Western will run a special train to the show on Friday, March 7, leaving Middletown at 5 p. m. arriving in Kingston at 6:55 and leaving Kingston on the return trip at 11:30, stopping at all stations. The railroad will advertise this excursion in Middletown, Ellenville and other newspapers and by posters, so that a good patronage will be assured. It might be well for dealers in other things than automobiles to sit up and take notice of the fact that there will be a lot of visitors in Kingston on that evening.

SAVS GOVERNMENT SHOULD STEP INTO MILK PRICE WAR

It Could Fix Price and Save Farmer, Says Walkill Man.

Walkill, N. Y., R.E.D., Feb. 19, 1924. Editor, The Freeman:

As a dairyman and reader of your paper, and one about ready to give up heart-broken, having at present 38 head of fine Holsteins, I wish you would kindly publish my opinion of the milk situation, and as I see it the only salvation for the milk producer if followed out. The president of the United States has voiced in no uncertain terms the plight of the farmer, but has so far only suggested cooperation as the remedy.

The president of the Dairyman's League keeps telling the milk producer that milk is not bringing half the cost of production and yet gives no relief. He preaches the farmers must have cooperation and with cooperation he will be able to run his affairs, and with milk producer after milk producer is giving up daily or mortgaging their farms trying to fight it out until cooperation turns the table. I for one feel that cooperation can only help—but never win the battle as it must be won. We have seen that the railroad men while thoroughly organized did not succeed in tying up the country when they struck and only won their points when this government stepped in and fixed wages, etc.

The railroads themselves are being saved through fixing of freight rates by a commission established for that purpose. The same is true with the milk situation. We can organize, get almost 100 per cent membership, then set a price for our product, but that means hardship to the country the same as the railroad strike did, and eventually the U. S. government will name the price. Why not this government, Mr. Coolidge being so thoroughly in sympathy with the farmer, do the right thing at the right time and not permit things to come to the end they must come to—shortly if the farmer is to be saved—that is set a price at the farm for commodities and one at the cities at necessary—not let the middlemen have it all to say. All the farmer is asking is cost of production—he evidently is willing to throw his 14 hours service daily in that he can't live if he can't enjoy the comforts of farm life, yet it looks as though a good many will have to get off of the farms as much as they would like to stay and follow their calling.

Yours,

A DISCOURAGED AND HEART-BROKEN FARMER.

SAUGERTIES FIRE CO.

SECOND ANNUAL BANQUET

The second annual banquet of the T. B. Cornwell Fire Company No. 2, of Saugerties, held Thursday evening, February 21st, at the Hillcrest House, Saugerties, was an unqualified success, about 175 partaking of a roast duck dinner served par excellence by the genial host, Joseph Uzzaman. The several tables occupied by the guests were handsomely arranged and decorated, and about the walls were hung the American colors and also the parade banner of No. 2's. Before and while the dinner was being served Maclary's orchestra rendered popular airs and the happy diners frequently sang the selections. At the opening the "Star Spangled Banner" was played and then a delicious menu was given careful attention.

Ernest Haszinger a fireman for 55 years in Saugerties, was called on and made a few remarks and William J. Turck of this city also made a short speech. Letters of regret were read from Martin Cantline and Christopher C. Huberts.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE FIRST ROBIN

"I always try to be the first one," said little Mr. Robin Red Breast. He was hopping about, enjoying the very, very early spring flowers which were coming out on the bushes and in some of the flower beds. He was enjoying, too, the green grass.

Such things were very popular with Mr. Robin Red Breast.

"Yes, you always come ahead of me," said young Master Robin. "You must make a very early start."

"I do," said little Mr. Robin Red Breast.

"But," said young Master Robin, "aren't you afraid you will find that there still will be some cold weather? Aren't you afraid you will find it very hard to keep warm?"

"I often think of starting sooner and then I say to myself—"

"Master Robin, it is warm where you are. It may be chilly for some time to come where you are going. Be wise and do not take chances."

"Yes," said little Mr. Robin Red Breast, "I, too, think of that."

"But I am willing to take a chance on the cold, and I'm willing to be a little chilly at times for the sake of the great welcome I receive. And because, too, of the joy I give to those who've been seeing snow and feeling cold and who long for the warmth of spring."

"They feel it will be warmer when they see me, and they know that even though chilly days still may come, that spring is really on the way and that she will come very soon."

"Oh, young Master Robin, there is no thrill in the world so great as being the first robin to arrive. Of course,

"Aren't You Afraid?"

others come along with me and stop at different places, but as we come along I hurry over to this city park.

"And people suddenly notice me. I've only just arrived, of course."

"But they wonder if I've been here a little while and they haven't noticed me."

"Ah, no, they notice me quickly. I can tell you that!"

"Yes, the people notice me. The children see me and their happy, gay, shrieks of delight just make my little robin heart beat with joy."

"And the grownups see me—ladies and gentlemen, too. But the children are the very first to notice me."

"The first robin," they cry. "The first robin of the year!"

"And my feathers almost seem to tremble with excitement."

"I'm told by my brothers and cousins and friends who go to the country that it is just as exciting there."

"But I always come to the city, for it seems to me a city park needs me more."

"And to hear the excitement I make and the joy I bring I will risk a little chilly weather, young Master Robin."

"So will others of the family who make very early starts. They know the great joy and excitement of being a first arrival."

"Oh, young Master Robin, if ever you heard that cry of joy which comes when you're first noticed hopping about you would never miss again hearing it."

"It is something I cannot describe. My robin words are too few in which to properly describe it to you."

"But I will try to do so in this way:

"It is as though the people suddenly felt my new happiness in their hearts, and so much of it, too, that they wanted to send forth that happiness around about them."

"And they send it forth by their joyful voices and we creatures of the air spring catch some of it as it goes around."

"Alas! It is as though they said:

"Little Mr. Robin Red Breast, you have brought us so much joy—"

"See! We have lots of happiness to spare. Here, take some of ours and when the cool days come hold the happiness close to your dear little heart so that it will keep you from being sorry you came so early."

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT IN THE HOME; IX, PLANNING THE WIRE SYSTEM

BY M. LUC KIESH.

Director, Lighting Research Laboratory, National Lamp Works of General Electric Co., Nela Park. Author "Lighting the Home," "Artificial Light," "The Lighting Art," "The Language of Color," etc.

Practical Housekeeping announces the beginning of a series of articles on "Artificial Light in the Home" by M. Luc Kiesh, whose search work have made him one of the foremost authorities on this subject. Mr. Kiesh has written numerous books along this line, among them "Lighting the Home," "The Language of Color," "The Lighting Art" and others.

In writing these special articles Mr. Kiesh has agreed to discuss house wiring and correct lighting in the home, taking each room and going thoroughly into details as to placing and size of lights, decorative principles and the installation and proper placing of convenience outlets so that the maximum of electric service may be procured.

The average home has about one convenience-outlet, very few wall-outlets and the wiring is practically confined to one ceiling-outlet per room. We are now living in an electrical age and our homes should be equipped so that we may enjoy the convenience, comfort and pleasure of electrical energy. Electricity first gave us mere light, then more light and now it can provide adequate and charming lighting. Also, many electrical appliances have arrived to make house-work easier and home life more delightful. If we are to take advantage of these joys, our homes must be adequately wired. The planning of the wiring in a home should be one of the first steps in house design. Thought and care should be given to this when we have blueprints before us. Let us visualize and plan the wiring of an imaginary, modern six-room house.

First Floor.

Porch: The porch should have a ceiling-outlet equipped with a fixture of enclosing glassware and controlled by a wall-switch indoors. If there is merely an entrance, a fixture might be installed over or at the side of the door and controlled by a wall-switch indoors. It is well to install a convenience-outlet in the wall about 3 feet above the floor, thus providing a connection for electrical appliances.

Hall: One ceiling-outlet equipped with a fixture of enclosing glassware and controlled by a wall-switch is generally satisfactory.

One duplex convenience-outlet might be provided if the space is large enough for portable lamps to be used.

Living Room: Wiring for one or two ceiling-outlets, depending upon the size of the room, and controlled by wall-switches should be installed. These may not be equipped with fixtures, depending upon the householder's taste. If a ceiling-fixture is used it should be hung close to the ceiling and the light sources should be shaded. If it is not desired, the outlet may be plastered over and in that case, one of the convenience-outlets should be controlled by a wall-switch, so that light be obtained on entering the room.

In a room about 18 ft. by 22 ft. there should be about five convenience-outlets. These outlets are primarily for portable lamps but they are also very useful for electrical appliances.

If there is a fire-place in the room, there should be outlets either on the

The decorative possibilities of lighting are evident in this well-lighted living room.

A well appointed sleeping room includes a baseboard outlet near the dressing table for the use of toilet appliances.

mantel or in the wall for two decorative candle-lamps or wall-brackets.

Dining Room: One ceiling-outlet either equipped with two circuits controlled by wall-switches or one circuit controlled by two 3-way wall-switches should be provided. This makes it possible to light the room either from the door to the hall or living-room, as the case may be, and at the kitchen door.

If this outlet is equipped with a two circuit fixture, one circuit may provide direct light, to light the table and the other circuit may provide general light in the room. In any case, it is best for the dining-room fixture to direct light on the table.

The arrangement of furniture should be decided upon and then one duplex convenience-outlet should be placed near the buffet and one near the serving-table. These provide connections for decorative candle-lamps on the buffet and for appliances.

There should be a convenience-outlet and a buzzer-outlet under the table.

Kitchen: Here, there should usually be one ceiling-outlet equipped with a fixture of enclosing glassware, hung close to the ceiling and controlled by two 2-way wall-switches. One switch should be at the door of the dining-room and one at the outside door.

There should be outlets over the sink and other important work-places.

One duplex convenience-outlet about 2 feet above the floor should be provided near the kitchen table. If an electric iron is used in the kitchen there should be provided a convenience-outlet in the wall for this.

Second Floor.

Hall and Stairway: One ceiling-fixture in the hall and one on the landing should be controlled by two 3-way wall switches, one switch upstairs and one downstairs.

A convenience-outlet will provide a connection for a decorative portable or an appliance such as the vacuum cleaner.

Bedrooms: The arrangement of the furniture must be decided upon before the wiring can be effectively laid out. One wall-bracket should be located on each side of the dresser mirror and these may be controlled by a wall-switch at the entrance of the room. If the locations of the dresser and dressing-table cannot be definitely decided upon, a duplex convenience-outlet should be provided in likely places. These will provide a place to connect bracket which are attached to the dresser or portable lamps.

If the position of the dresser or the dressing-table can be definitely established, a convenience-outlet in the wall, near one of them and about 3 feet high will be found handy for appliances.

There should be a duplex convenience-outlet near the bed for a reading lamp and appliances.

A ceiling-fixture may be provided and, if so, this should be controlled by a wall-switch at the door.

All closets should have some provision for lighting. Pendent pull-chain sockets are satisfactory.

Bath: Two wall-brackets, flanking the mirror and controlled by a wall-switch at the entrance to the room, provide general lighting, as well as mirror lighting in the average bathroom.

One convenience-outlet at the right of the lavatory and about 3 feet above the floor is useful for appliances.

Basement. There should be as many ceiling-outlets as there are useful spaces and work-places in the basement; that is, one at the foot of the stairs, one in the fruit or vegetable closet, one near the furnace, one in the coal bin, one over the laundry trays, one over the ironer, etc.

There should also be provided outlets for a washing machine, ironer, iron, refrigeration plant, etc.

Attic. In the average attic two or three ceiling or pendent outlets are sufficient.

Throughout the home, electricity is essential if comfort, convenience, and economy are to be considered. On the proper and adequate wiring of the home depends much of its satisfaction and enjoyment. We have barely entered the electrical age and have little conception of the coming uses of electricity. The life of a residence must be measured in decades. Will a well-wired residence of today be adequately wired for the coming year?

Isn't it a Fact?

Great men do not often recognize each other's greatness. Shakespeare never wrote a word of praise of any contemporary.

AN IDEAL DINNER FOR COLD DAYS AND SOME OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Brunswick stew is a very well known Virginia dish which many people think is impossible of accomplishment save when one has a real "old mammy" cook in the kitchen. This, however, is not true. Anyone can make a good Brunswick stew, for it is not a hard dish to prepare if directions are followed.

The main dish of the dinner menu given below is this stew. It can be readily prepared from inexpensive pieces of neck or breast of lamb. The accompanying dishes go well with it and make a pleasing dinner.

Brunswick Lamb Stew
Fried Hominy
Cabbage Salad
Cottage Pudding
Brunswick Lamb Stew

Purchase three or four pounds of lamb or young mutton from the neck or breast and have it cut into small pieces. Put this meat in a roasting pan with two small onions, peeled and sliced, a bay leaf, a couple of stalks of celery, and just enough cold water to cover, and let simmer in the oven. When the meat is tender remove from the oven and allow to get cold. Then remove the cake of fat from the top and pick the meat free of bone. After this return the meat to the stock in which it was cooked and to this add three large potatoes that have been parboiled, peeled and sliced; a heaping cupful each of canned corn and lima beans, chopped onion and a teaspoonful of minced parsley.

Return this to the oven of the range, and after it has reached the boiling point, let it simmer again for an hour. At the end of this time add two cupfuls of canned tomato pulp, a teaspoonful of white sugar, two teaspoonfuls of salt and a half a teaspoonful of black pepper and replace in the oven to cook for a half hour longer. After this stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter rubbed smooth into an equal quantity of flour. When this has thickened the gravy of the stew, let it boil for several minutes and then the stew is ready to serve.

Fried Hominy.

Soak two cupfuls of fine hominy over night or for several hours. When ready to cook just cover it with slightly salted boiling water and simmer for an hour. Then drain off any water which has not boiled away. While the hominy is still warm turn it into a deep square tin with straight sides. When it is perfectly cold cut into slices an inch thick, roll these in flour, or if you can spare an egg mix one with a tablespoonful of cold water and dip each slice in this before rolling it in fine cracker-crumbs, using "high" heat for this. Fry to a good brown in shallow fat.

Cabbage Salad.

Wash a small white cabbage; lay it in cold water for half an hour and cut it into fine shreds with a sharp knife. When ready to serve pour over it a dressing made by rubbing the yolk of a hard boiled egg to a paste with half a cupful of salad oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, salt and pepper to taste and a suspicion of mustard. A very good addition to this dressing is a couple of tablespoonfuls of sour cream whipped stiff and stirred in lightly at the last moment. Have all thoroughly cold.

Cottage Pudding.

Cream together a small cupful of granulated sugar and a rather liberal tablespoonful of butter and put with them the yolks of two eggs, beaten light. Stir in a cupful of milk, then the whites of the eggs, whipped stiff, and last of all, two cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half teaspoonful

Make Your Own Home Electrical

We hear a good deal lately about Model Electrical Homes that have been built in various parts of the country and used for exhibition purposes. They show what may be accomplished by the housewife to conserve her time and energy in routine housework and in meeting the ever-present servant problem.

But it shouldn't be necessary to have to see a "model home" in order to realize the great benefits to be had from a complete equipment of electrical home appliances in your own home.

Electricity cooks meals quickly and economically, sweeps the floors, cleans and irons the linen, washes the dishes, makes ice, warms the chilly room, drives the sewing machine and the utility motor in the kitchen, soothes with cooling breezes in the summer or with warmth from the heating pad in winter, grills steaks, toasts bread, percolates coffee, cooks waffles and does a hundred and one other household tasks quickly and efficiently.

Electric service for domestic purposes is about the only important item of living expense that has not advanced in cost since pre-war days. The appliances for using it are cheaper, better and more efficient.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 23, 1924.

The limitations of armament and arbitration agreement entered into by the five Central American Republics at the instigation of Secretary Hughes could not prevent civil war in any of them. Honduras is torn with conflicting political ambitions, and American recognition of the country has been withdrawn. The American minister remains, however, in an unofficial capacity, and through him the United States will seek to conciliate the contending factions. If serious bloodshed is avoided it will be another practical accomplishment for peace to the credit of the Republican Administration.

PASSING THE BUCK.

It is impossible to imagine a more disgusting exhibition of insincerity and buck passing than that presented in Albany Wednesday night at the Voitead Law Inquest held pursuant to the call issued by Governor Smith at the request of Palmer Canfield, the director of prohibition enforcement for the state of New York. As was to be expected, instead of conferring on ways and means for enforcing the law, the conference resolved itself into an exchange of exhortation, misrepresentation and recrimination. Unfortunately the press representatives in Albany were too stupid or too lazy to send out clear and comprehensive accounts of the proceedings, contenting themselves with a few canned speeches so long and dry that few persons had the patience to read them. A Freeman man present at the hearing briefly summarizes the main points as follows:

Palmer Canfield—Day by day in every way we are getting a better and better enforcement of the law, but Congress never intended that the federal authorities should be responsible for any but the big things, such as protecting the border, detecting big conspiracies, and issuing permits. Statistics, based on estimates, prove that the quantity of liquor consumed is very much lower than before prohibition, but the increase in potency of booze gives tremendous results in the way of drunkenness. The federal authorities are efficient, but local authorities do not support them and there should be a state enforcement law. We must have the support of an aroused public sentiment.

United States District Attorney Hayward—Our department is functioning efficiently, but the courts are so clogged that new cases are coming in faster than old ones can be tried, so that we now have 2,600 cases pending and not judges enough to try them. We need more judges. The local authorities ought to do some of this work. At first there was enough good liquor seized to supply 27 hospitals. Now, in spite of heavier seizures, we do not get enough good liquor to supply one hospital. We must have the support of an aroused public sentiment.

Police Commissioner Enright of New York—We are working hard but there is so much delay in getting action from the U. S. district attorney and the courts that much of our labor is in vain. It takes from three to six days to get action after we make a complaint.

Acting Mayor Hulbert of New York—Why all this fuss over just one law? Why not some attention to other laws, as well. Thousands are killed by automobiles. Why not a fuss over that? All law should be enforced, the prohibition law, as well as the others.

Mayor Schwab of Buffalo—We are enforcing the law but what good does it do when everybody is making his own in the cellar, even children 12 years old running stills, and in five or six years from now they will have learned to make pretty good stuff?

Governor Smith—It's all politics and a part of a political game. The way to enforce law is to enforce it. The border counties, sparsely settled, have processions of trucks loaded with liquor going through them and have decreased the number of deputy sheriffs and constables. Why don't they do their duty and enforce the law? They talk dry but act wet. The state troopers are seizing liquor in increasing quantities and are doing their duty. You cannot enforce law without money to pay officials.

Everybody having passed the buck, a vote was taken on the first section of the program recommended by Mr. Canfield. There were a few faint and scattering "yes." "You're in favor of it, but not so loud, not so loud," said the governor. The other sections were declared approved and the meeting was adjourned, without anything having been done except to exchange excuses and agree that everybody is in favor of the old flag and an appropriation and the other fellow is liable for all shortcomings and failures.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

ONE CAUSE OF LAME KNEE.

You have a knee that is beginning to give you trouble and you are at a loss to figure out what is causing the pain.

It is on the inner side of the knee and sometimes the pain is more severe than at other times.

You find that when you have been on your feet more than usual that the pain is worse.

There doesn't seem to be much swelling, you are not sick in any way and have no temperature.

What is likely the matter?

Well, you are eating well and feeling pretty well, and it may be that you are getting heavy, putting on a great deal of weight.

What effect does this have?

Well, this extra weight must be sustained by the knees.

The hip is wide and takes the center of gravity out to a considerable distance from the center line of the body. The big bone running from the hip to the knee swings away inward to the center line again toward the knee. Then the big bone below the knee has to swing out again to make a fair balance for your body.

And just here when the bone from the hip and the bone of the lower leg meet is a ligament holding the bones together.

It has some real job owing to the lower end of upper bone swinging in, and the upper end of lower bone swinging out. You see that a natural spread occurs between the bones.

If then you put twenty to fifty pounds more weight on it, its job will be still harder. It may give way a little and your pain results.

The obvious thing to do, if possible, is to keep the weight down, and bind up the knee with a factory cotton bandage.

As I pointed out in a former article a flat foot is a frequent cause of this form of painful knee. Putting a couple of lifts on the inner side of the shoe rolls the foot outward and takes the strain off the knee.

GRAY NECKWEAR AND OTHER SORTS IN SOUTH

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The heralded return of lingerie collar and cuff effects is confirmed by many smart costumes. Rather a novel note results from the substitution of gray for all white or even ecru neckwear. Several women past their first youth have sponsored this combination at Palm Beach.

In one instance, the dress was a navy coat type with embroidered batiste and lace collar of gray which followed the surplice line to the waist. In another instance, the frock was black satin with a bertha of gray lace and undersleeves of the same, the lace set combining Valenciennes and cluny dipped gray.

Not only in the Southlands which offers such a tremendous advantage in getting behind the scenes before the curtain rises on spring, but from Paris as well, come reports that more and more women favor the lingerie touch. Dressmakers not infrequently make undersleeves and collars of dainty laces and batiste as part of the frocks, but none-the-less, they are important for accessory inspiration since they may be made separately. Alencon and Valenciennes laces, embroidered batiste, nets and ribbons are employed along with several other new materials.

There is, in neckwear, as in everything else, a tendency towards tailored lines. Two-tier Peter Pan collars bound in contrasting color are an acknowledgment of this tendency and even marquisette is made in the approved and so-called boyish line. Organdie is never in questionable taste, should anyone be bewildered by the neckwear offerings. Generally speaking, a popular note is struck in ribbon bindings of contrasting color. Even the Buster Brown collar is not exempt from this treatment.

Many things hinge on each other in fashion. Both the return of the suit and the enthusiasm for sports togs is credited with stimulating interest in neckwear, other than the scarf which goes along on its own momentum.

Democratic Common Ground.

Cambridge Prospect union, for 30 years the place of evening instruction where poor men's sons met on common ground with sons of the idle rich, in making up work required to enter or continue at Harvard, is the pioneer institution of evening learning in this country. From it most other agencies now giving evening classes took their cue. Recently, in order to compete and conform with these other agencies, it has had to reorganize its own activities.

Sun's Radiant Energy.

If the radiant energy of the sun falling on the earth were wholly converted into mechanical energy, each individual's share would be sufficient to lift a weight of 3,000 pounds through a vertical distance of nearly 20 miles every minute of his life.

Good Health—a Blessing

A specialist will often succeed in prescribing treatment that restores to health, after failure by the family physician or the country doctor. If you have not obtained the results you desire from treatment, then see a specialist at once. Dr. Swinburne has specialized in all Stomach, Liver and Intestinal Disorders for many years and has given relief to many sufferers after other treatments had failed. Nine-tenths of all diseases are caused by a deranged stomach, and many chronic ailments can obtain relief by improving the action of the digestive system. No matter what your trouble may be—you should call to see the doctor and obtain his advice. Many patients whose cases were pronounced incurable by other physicians and where all kinds of drugless treatment had failed, have obtained relief and improved health by taking Dr. Swinburne's treatment. He is opposed to the wild craze for surgery and in many cases his treatment gave relief without surgery when an operation was said to be the only means of a cure, and one should never consent to an operation, unless some other physician, who is not in a league with the craze for surgery doctors—has given his honest opinion that the operation is needed. In addition to the most improved medical methods, being used, the New Electronic treatment—based upon Abrams' discovery, will be given at 163 Clinton Avenue, and a trained assistant will give this treatment to the many cases who are anxious to obtain relief from chronic troubles.

NEW ELECTRONIC THERAPY

has proved the most marvelous method of eradicating disease, and wherever it has been given a reasonable trial it has given great relief, for the Electronic acts upon the deep-seated blood conditions and works to clear the blood and produce permanent relief.

BLOOD WILL TELL

When a person is suffering from some physical ailment the question of a correct diagnosis is often of greatest importance for a mistake in understanding the exact nature of the trouble, the treatment could not be given correctly. A careful examination of a case with the most modern instruments has been considered essential, and various chemical and microscopic examinations of various secretions to help one to arrive at a correct diagnosis of a disease is the method usually employed. The discovery of the X-ray proved a great help in the diagnosis of broken bones and locating of bullets and other foreign bodies in the flesh. But the X-ray is of very little use in diagnosis of other disease conditions. But now comes a recent discovery of a new Electronic Machine for giving more accurate knowledge of a person's condition by the examination of just a few drops of a patient's blood taken from the tip of the finger. Many people will think that the blood tests made by the Board of Health will answer the same purpose. But that is entirely different, for it is used to determine only one disease, a specific blood condition, and could not give any aid in the diagnosis of other diseases.

Many patients can now obtain relief and the enjoyment of life. Even in cancer, morbid growth, enlarged glands, lung diseases or abscess conditions the results have been remarkable. In all these troubles the treatment reaches the blood condition and offers much better prospects of a cure than surgery. For when a growth is removed with the knife it so often returns because the blood was not treated to control the disease. Next in the number of severe troubles where the Electronic Treatment proves a great help to humanity includes nervous conditions, neuritis, neurasthenia, paralysis, rheumatism and arthritis, and often in just a few treatments, patients obtain wonderful relief.

Dr. Swinburne, the New York Specialist, will be in Kingston, N. Y., at 163 Clinton Avenue on Wednesday, Feb. 27th, from 9 a. m. to 12 m.; 1 to 5 p. m. and evening 6:30 to 7 and will examine all patients without charge—unless one decides to take up treatment. Special propositions given all new cases, starting treatment this visit.

Change Tickets For Flhaja Trio Financial and Commercial

Persons holding or buying season tickets for the three concerts to be given by the Flhaja Trio at the high school are reminded that the diagram for the exchange of tickets for seat coupons will be open on Monday at 9 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A., and from then on to the time of the concert. On Friday morning the patrons gathered at the home of Mrs. Henth on Albany avenue and were privileged to hear a public rehearsal of the trio, which gave promise of an exceptionally fine concert next Friday evening. The trio, composed of Mrs. Florence Cudberry, violinist, Jacob Mollett, cellist, Harry P. Dodge, pianist, play to gether admirably. The first number, the full Trio II in B-flat by Mozart, with which the program opened seemed especially suited to the sun-filled, stately room, the trio played with happiness; the concerto with a wonderful spiritual effect and the concerto exercising a fine effect in its crisp brilliancy.

The second number that the trio played was the "Andante con moto" from Schubert's Trio, Op. 100, a composition that grips one.

The program was pleasantly varied at this point. Miss Ethel Schwab, piano, joined Mr. Dodge, playing first a Schubert Impromptu and then a Beethoven in Debussy. Miss Schwab's tone production is exceptionally rich and full in effect; her interpretation is artistic and she has an increasingly good technique.

The morning's program closed with two shorter numbers by the trio; a dainty Presto and lovely Andante from "Trio in C Minor," Op. 101 by Brahms and Haydn's joyous "Gypsy Rondo."

In addition to these numbers, Miss Marjorie Meyer, lyric soprano of New York city will sing two groups of songs, as follows:

Si tu le veux Koehlin
La Belle au Bois Dormant Poulenc
Mondnacht Schumann
Auftrage Schumann
Ah Willow! (Old English) Schumann
Compuser Unknown
Les Silhouettes Carpenter
The Sick Rose Rumer
When I Go Away From You (Cello obligato) Hadley
Miss Marjorie Meyer, a gifted lyric soprano, is fast taking her place in the ranks of younger American artists. She has received her training with the best European and American masters, though her entire musical education has been in America. Miss Meyer enjoys the friendship of such international celebrities as Mme. Marcella Sembrich; Mme. Louise Homer and others equally well known. She has sung with splendid success throughout the east.

Turn out on a plate and eat with liquid sauce.

Pudding Sauce.
Softened a tablespoonful of butter and work into a cupful of brown sugar. When it is well creamed put it into a saucepan with half a cupful of boiling water and bring to a boil; add a heaping teaspoonful of corn-starch wet to a soft paste with cold water, boil up and stir until it thickens, take from the range, flavor with nutmeg or cinnamon to taste, turn into a pitcher and serve hot with the pudding.

KITCHEN STOVE BLOWN TO PIECES; ROOM WRECKED

Early Monday morning Ernest O'Connor of Arena, Delaware county, built a fire in the kitchen stove and went to the garage. Returning home he found the stove all blown to pieces, the floor covered with ashes and the kitchen looked as if it might have been visited by a cyclone. A flat iron sitting on front of the stove was on top of the cupboard, one piece of iron went through the side of the house, a bottle of water left on the stove was blown against the side of the house with such force that the kettle was triangular in shape. Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor had been away for two days and had left all the water faucets open and thought there was no danger and built a fire not knowing the water front and connecting pipes were frozen.

ZARN WINS NATIONAL DOG DERBY RACE CHAMPIONSHIP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Ashton, Idaho, Feb. 22.—Olcott Zarn, "kid" driver, today was hailed by northern trail enthusiasts as the national dog race champion after his spectacular victory in the dog derby yesterday. All favorites were defeated and all predictions thoroughly upset in the driving finish across the snow trail. The winner's times was 2:22.47.

Smoky Gaston, the champion, Tud Kent, ex-champion and the Canadian entry of the Montreal winter sports were heavy favorites.

Removing the Cause of Bronchitis

Weekly Health Talk
By Froude & Mac Kinnon, D.C.

The man who has never suffered from bronchitis does not know the pain of being unable to breathe easily and deeply. A cold settles in the bronchial tubes. There is a shortening of the breath and a reduced amount of breathing. Unless the cause is removed, the bronchitis becomes more and more permanent, weakening the entire body and inviting serious, and often fatal, diseases.

The cause of bronchitis is in the spine, and the chiropractor is able to find the disturbed spinal conditions and restore normal nerve flow. The cause is reached and Nature is given a fair chance to restore the bronchial tubes to a healthy condition. Not only does the bronchitis disappear, but the danger of more serious lung ailments, such as pneumonia, influenza and tuberculosis, is at the same time averted.

RID OF BRONCHITIS AND PERSISTENT COUGHING

"For years I have been troubled with a bronchial cough. As a rule it was not troublesome in the summer, but as soon as the leaves began to fall, the bronchitis became evident. I coughed frequently, and occasionally would spit blood. Chiropractic spinal adjustments broke up the persistence of this trouble the first season. It is now three years since my first series of adjustments and there have been no symptoms of a return of this chronic trouble."—Thomas Carr, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1201F.

First Dutch Annual Dinner

Clinton, and Hamilton had led New York almost up to the point of ratification.

The greatest event of that day was when a messenger arrived in Poughkeepsie, where the convention was in session, relaying the news from Virginia that that state had ratified the Constitution whereupon Hamilton moved to stop all wrangling and ratify the new Constitution, an action which Clinton promptly approved. Those men were prompted by less selfish motives than many of our public men today; certainly there could be no greater devotion to country than that displayed by Washington when he pledged his fortune, together with his life and his sacred honor, to the new government after liberty had been gained. Lincoln's devotion to law was the outstanding feature of his character. Both men knew that he who stoops to bear the yoke of law serves his fellow human beings best.

Today, we have the same struggle which took place then. It is not a new struggle by any means, but only intensified. In the early Constitutional Convention, we have the picture of Patrick Henry shaking his finger in Washington's face and accusing him of trying to create a tyranny. That charge has been repeated whenever laws have been adopted affecting entire liberty of action, such as the compulsory educational law, the narcotics law and many other laws. Then the cry is raised, "Liberty overthrown, tyranny re-established."

We cannot quarrel with men who are trying to re-establish the decalogue. And men have a right to believe that they are trying to establish tyranny. We cannot quarrel with them; either, but when they use the expression "personal liberty" to cover and screen positive revolt against the laws of our country, then it is time to call a halt. There are ways to create a Constitutional amendment or an enactment, and ways to destroy it or to remedy it.

There are three things to do: First, change the laws in an orderly, legal manner, or if change cannot be made in that way, then, second, get up an armed rebellion and change the government, for in this country the majority rules, or as an alternative.

Third, obey the laws. At Albany last summer, when a hearing was had, one man predicted that if one law was enforced, there would be armed rebellion. If the matter came to that head, Colonel Hayward said he personally would be found with his head alongside a machine gun on the same side of the barricade where he always had been—on the government side. But most of the people who talked as the man had talked in Albany would not be found near the barricades. They would be found in their cellars, probably their wine cellars. There used to be a lot of talk about parlor Socialists, but their place seemed to have been taken by Cellar Bolsheviks.

There were only two things to do with a law—either repeal or obey it. No law was too good to be repealed if the people wanted it repealed, and no law was too bad to be obeyed if the people wanted it obeyed. Until a law is repealed, it is just as criminal to violate it because we want it repealed or expect it will be modified as it is to violate it under any other circumstances. If the people can pick out the laws they want to obey or disobey, then we are face to face with selective anarchy, and for what other offense did we deport Emma Goldman than this? If we break down the law, we break down the government, and our liberties are trodden in the dust. It is strange that so much of this agitation should come over the prohibition law.

What he believed personally had nothing to do with his attitude toward the law, said Colonel Hayward. From personal experience he believed in prohibition. But the more important thing was that he believed in government and in obedience to its laws. He did not believe it was a cause to upset the government because the saloon had been shut out of our lands, or because doctors were dissatisfied with the narcotic law, or because corporations were dissatisfied with the anti-trust laws. Personal popularity is an unimportant thing. The man who fails to live up to his oath of office is a traitor to his government and to his party. The flag that has been put up is not going to be taken down.

Colonel Hayward said that in addition to the qualities which Judge Haasbroek had lived as being possessed by him, he was also a discoverer, for once occupying his present office of United States district attorney he had discovered that there were eleven counties in the Southern district of New York besides New York and he had discovered three good lawyers practicing in Ulster county, who with Brother Philip Elting's assistance had become his assistants, and he wished that all his staff were as good as the Ulster county part.

In conclusion, Colonel Hayward said he frequently was asked whether the Volstead law could be enforced or whether it would be repealed, or the same question in regard to the narcotics law or other laws, and his answer to all of them was "I don't know." He could only supplement this by the story of a boy sitting astride a fence at a cross roads when an automobile came along whose owner asked what place he would reach by taking either of the three roads, or the name of the place through which he had but recently passed, to all of which the boy said he didn't know. Finally, becoming exasperated, the motorist said, "Boy, you don't seem to know anything on any subject, do you?" Whereupon the boy replied, "Well, maybe I don't know very much, but anyway, I ain't lost."

Judge Russell's Speech. After Colonel Hayward had concluded his speech, which was received with applause, Mrs. Benjamin Johnston sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." The assemblage carried the chorus.

Ex-Chief Justice Isaac Franklin

Russell, of the Court of Special Sessions of the city of New York, was then introduced by Judge Haasbroek, and after a few words in a lighter vein, spoke in substance as follows:

"The fathers of the American commonwealth served in the Parliament of Cromwell and fought on the battlefields of Naseby and Marston Moor. Before the Revolutionary War the real founders of our empire were gathered in strong force in New England, listening to Samuel Adams in Faneuil Hall and reading the trenchant passages of common sense, as they flowed from the pen of Thomas Paine. The genius of George Bancroft has made Samuel Adams immortal, while the Puritan bigotry has compelled the muse of history to pass in silence the name of Thomas Paine, who was a sincere patriot and devoted lover of liberty and the friend of Washington, but who had the misfortune to write 'The Age of Reason.'"

"The fathers of the republic were not all good Christians and church members. Franklin, chief among our statesmen and diplomats, was an avowed free-thinker; so was Jefferson; and we have a perennial debate as to whether Washington, while certainly a vestryman, was at any time a communicant in the English church. And there were others in that day who had no sympathy with a religious zeal that defaced the legislation of the colonies with statutes under which churches were established, slavery was entrenched, witches were burned and Quakers hanged.

"Jefferson knew well enough that all men are not created free and equal. When Jefferson spoke of men he meant white men, not negroes. It cost us a million lives and billions of dollars, in the great crisis of our Civil War, to write in the constitution a real charter of human equality. And this can mean no more than equality before the law, an equal chance to compete with our fellows for the good things in life. Social equality can never be secured by law. If it could a socialistic state would be really established, human life would be subjected to dull and debasing monotony—a monotony more maddening than the endless halloolujah and ecstatic delight of the saved saint in glory. The milk of human kindness flows from the rich to the needy. Charity, religion and brotherly love can have but a small range of beneficent influence in a society of equals.

"But Washington made no mistake here. He knew the place of the negro and never asked a black man to dinner at the Executive Mansion. Washington was no democrat. His was no horny hand of toil. His tastes and habits were pronouncedly aristocratic. He had a large frame and majestic presence; his clothes were made to order in England; he was radiant with silk and silver and farol, sumptuously every day. He had great practical sagacity. When the land was opened up for settlement he selected for himself choice spots for plantations out of the broad acres of the public domain with which he had become familiar as a surveyor. He married a widow with money, and died leaving, perhaps, $800,000, the largest fortune that had ever been accumulated in America up to that time.

"Over a hundred years ago Washington passed into history and his apotheosis began. He had been reviled and calumniated as no president of the United States has ever been; but today he lives a hero in the minds of young and old alike. His proportions are more than national. In the language of an eloquent Irishman he was the boon of Providence to the human race, his fame is eternity, his residence creation! France, our friend and ally in 1776, fighting by our side and aiding us with money and kind words, got back full pay for all her sacrifice in 1789 when she caught from America and Washington the spirit of liberty and equality and shook off the shackles of privilege and despotism. Washington taught to England the secret of imperial greatness and cohesion, namely that it is in the righteousness which exalteth a nation; and today Canada and Australia and scores of British dependencies, in all seas and under all suns and in the depths of all continents, enjoy the largest liberty and the fullest autonomy under English law. The peaceful disbandment of the revolutionary army, accomplished chiefly through his personal influence, is perhaps the greatest proof of the genius and patriotism of Washington.

In the Hall of Fame in New York city many great Americans have been appropriately celebrated, but stupidity has written there the names of several bodies. Of all the hundred so-called immortals whose works are there commemorated in stone and bronze and massive marble, how many will last as thousands of years? What names will then be brighter and more glorious? Were this the birthday of the martyr-president the speaker would surely mention Lincoln first. But tonight we may listen to Mr. Gladstone and hear him say that, in the pantheon of the world, the loftiest pedestal and most colossal figure should be assigned to George Washington.

"The frailties of great men remind us that they are human and bid us take courage for ourselves. And so with Washington—we hail him as a great commander, not that his campaigns were one continued retreat from Long Island to Yorktown, but because he actually drove the royal forces from the field at Harlem Heights and over in New Jersey. Besides he stood the supreme test of generalship, to command a retreating army and preserve it from annihilation. We think of him at Valley Forge upon his knees in prayer, and if some cynic says he swore upon the field of Monmouth we answer that it cannot be.

"He was a man of learning, too, and letters. Look at his speeches and his farwell message; never mind who wrote them. Nor do we care that his last will and testament in his own hand writing was poorly spelled.

"And he was such a handsome man, standing erect like Hercules, Ajax and Apollo! Benignity sat on his countenance like a god's. Who dares to say that that benevolent look, which we see about his mouth in Stuart's picture or on a two-cent stamp, came not from his paternal heart but from the funny setting of his false teeth. Away with such a one; let him be anathema.

"For us there remains the duty to cherish his words and his example and bequeath them as a rich legacy unto our offspring. What if the Washington of our childhood be a myth? Who is the poorer? Are we not all better Americans because our parents taught us to reverence this man for his exalted character and his resplendent patriotism? Let us continue to idealize in him all truth and honor and loyalty and wisdom and humanity, believing that it was reserved for Washington to unite these graces of spirit in one great character, and like the lovely masterpiece of the Grecian artist, to exhibit in one glow of associated beauty the pride of every model, the perfection of every master."

Hayward for Governor.

Judge Haasbroek complimented the Men's Club upon having procured both Colonel Hayward and Judge Russell as speakers, and said that if a change was to be made in the governorship, there would seem to be no man more acceptable than Colonel Hayward, with his reverence for law, as the next governor of the state.

The speechmaking came to a close with a brief talk by the Rev. Mr. Boeve, who referred to the absence of Admiral Higginson, who had been one of the speakers at last year's dinner, and Judge Clearwater, from whom he read a letter regretting inability to be present on account of a promise of long standing to be a speaker at the Washington's Birthday dinner of the Society of the Cincinnati. Dr. Boeve referred to previous banquets and affairs given by the men of the church and said that so long as he was connected with the annual banquet it was not to be used for the exploitation of any particular cause except that of good fellowship.

After singing "Auld Lang Syne," the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. A. S. Cole, pastor of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

PINE HILL.

Pine Hill, Feb. 22.—H. W. Misner plowed out Main street and the depot road Wednesday afternoon so automobiles could be operated.

The Pine Hill-Kingston bus was about two hours late in arriving here on Wednesday evening on account of the snow.

Mr. and Mrs. William Misner of this village celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary on Saturday evening.

Wilbur Giles has been awarded the contract to carry the mail to and from the railroad. George Smith has been carrying it for the past month, since the contract was given up by George France.

Missouri River Longest.

The Missouri river is not only the longest river in the United States, but it is the longest river in the world. Its actual length in miles is 4,194, and the Amazon, the next longest, which traverses Brazil in South America, is 3,944 miles. The Hoang-Ho in China and the Murray in Australia rank next, with 3,000 miles each. The Mississippi, often thought of as the greatest of all rivers, is in reality only 2,616 miles long.

Cattle in Forests.

The ranges of the national forests supported about 2,000,000 head of cattle and 7,000,000 head of sheep, not counting calves and lambs, in the current year.

Society Notes

Mrs. Catherine Harris of 530 Delaware avenue was greatly surprised Friday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Paulus, on Foxhall avenue, in honor of her birthday. A chicken supper was served, the table decorations being the national colors. A good time was had by all present.

A birthday surprise party was tendered at the home of Edna Williams on Abruzzo street, on Thursday evening. Edna received many beautiful and useful presents. There were a number of games played, and an enjoyable evening was spent by all. There were prizes won by Edna Williams, Edith and Edna Williams, Helen Storm, Julia Lee-rive, May Murdoch, Dorothy Doh-nken, Edith Leverich, Lucy Buholz, Agnes Rodgers, Jeannette Grimes, the Messers, Harry Williams, Albert Jap-pleyer, Edgar Lawrence, Ru-dolph Planthaber, Harold Metcalfe, Fred Williams, Edward Finch, Thomas Burger and Mr. and Mrs. K. Williams and son Donald. The guests departed in the early hours of the morning, wishing Edna many more happy birthdays.

Williams-Crispell.
Mr. and Mrs. Homer Crispell of Haverstraw, N. Y., announce the marriage of their daughter, Marguerite Muriel, to George Harris Williams also of Haverstraw. The wedding took place at Faith Presby-terian Church, New York city, Feb-ruary 9.

Birthday Surprise.
A surprise birthday party was given on Friday in honor of Sidney Corey, a British subject, by a number of American citizens at the home of Mrs. Howard LaFors on Pine street, the hostess being Mrs. T. DeWitt and her son Brown. There was dancing and singing and a chicken supper was served at midnight. Among others present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Ray, Miss B. Turner, Miss F. Turner, Lionel Archer. An enjoyable time was had by all.

Washington's Day At Sahler's.
The customary Washington's birth-day military card party was held at the Sahler Sanatorium Friday evening, when about fifty persons en-tered and enjoyed military five Hun-dred, while a number more were present. Mrs. C. O. Sahler costumed as Martha Washington, and Miss Elizabeth Watt as George Washing-ton, received the guests. The hall was beautifully decorated with American flags and a portrait of the first president. Characteristic prizes were given, and refreshments served to all.

Uster Park Card Party.
Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Pennington en-tertained a number of friends at cards Thursday evening at their home in Uster Park. First prizes were won.

Rialto dance will be held at Cler-mont Hall Monday evening.

by Mrs. Holt N. Winfield and Melvin Churchwell. The consolation prizes were awarded to Mrs. E. T. Doyle and Holt N. Winfield. During the evening a radio concert was enjoyed. The Pennington home was very elabor-ately and artistically decorated, be-ing in the form of Washington's birthday decorations. Piano and vocal selections were rendered during the evening and at midnight an elaborate luncheon was served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. DuMont, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Herring, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Churchwell and Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Winfield.

Wiltwyck Chapter Celebrates.
The members of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., celebrated Washington's Birthday with an appropriate pro-gram and social hour at the Chapter house on Friday afternoon. The program opened with a piano selec-tion, a medley of patriotic airs played by Mrs. Alfred Van Buren. This was followed by a sort of Round Table relative to Sulgrave Manor, the English home of Washington's ancestors, led by Mrs. E. O. Allen, who had charge of the entire pro-gram, assisted by Chapter members. A very pleasing reading of Riley's "The Old, Played-out Song" was given by Mr. Harry P. Van Wagen-en, with Mrs. William S. Gittinger playing the musical accompaniment. As an encore number, Mrs. Van Wagenen gave, "The Tree." The program was followed by a social hour during which refreshments were served from an appropriately and prettily decorated tea table with suitable decorations of cherry trees, etc. The hostesses were Mrs. William Van Ethen and Mrs. Silas McFerre.

Parish Supper Receipts $1,000

Gross receipts from the parish supper given Thursday evening by the Church of the Immaculate Con-ception were $1,300, of which about $1,000 is net profit. Father Ignatius desires to express his thanks and the thanks of the parish to all those whose support helped to make the event a success, and especially to the ladies in charge of the supper.

Monday and Tuesday, March 2 and 3, there will be entertainments given in the parish hall. Monday evening from 7 to 12 a doughnut supper will be served and Tuesday evening a play will be given by the young peo-ple of the parish under the manage-ment of T. F. Fronczkowski, who re-cently organized the St. Aloysius Society among the young men of the church. The program and details will be given later.

Balloon Tires

For the first time you are offered a choice of three kinds of tires, built for use with lower air pressure.

1 Dayton Balloon type tires for 20 and 21 inch wheels.

2 Dayton Balloon type tires which fit standard rims and wheels.

3 Dayton Thorebred Cords, standard size tires built for lower air pressure.

Dayton Thorebred Cords are the pioneers in low air pressure tires, perfected four years ago.

The number of plies differ with different manufacturers.

There is from two to four plies LESS in balloon tires than for the same size in Dayton low air pressure tires.

That is why we say ride SAFELY and COMFORTABLY on Dayton low air pressure tires, because they have more strength in their carcasses than balloon tires and yet are very flexible.

Prices range on 30 x 3 1/2 from $8.00 up.

32 x 4 from $17.35 up.

32 x 4 1/2 from $22.90 up.

A Paramount Picture

The greatest picture Pola Negri ever appeared in—foreign or American. The fiery, dynamic personality of "Passion," flashing like a comet through reel upon reel of soul-tugging, nerve-tingling action. Thousands in the cast; colossal sets that will make you gasp; blazing color and magnificent costumes. And a story of super-thrills and breathless melodrama.

Owing to the length of this Picture (10 reels) and the enormous price paid for it—the picture has been playing everywhere without vaudeville.
